REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Sexual Violence Prevention and Education

The Arkansas Commission on Child Abuse, Rape, and Domestic Violence (ACCARDV) of the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (UAMS) and the Arkansas Department of Health (ADH) is authorized to allocate and administer funds for Sexual Violence Prevention and Education through a cooperative agreement with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). These funds will strengthen sexual violence prevention and education efforts through the provision of grants to community-based organizations to provide comprehensive sexual violence primary prevention aimed at preventing the initial occurrence of sexual violence. Funds are available, as specified in this Request For Proposal (RFP) for Rape Prevention Education programs.

Legislative Authority

In 1994, Congress passed the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA). The intent for VAWA is to assist women in the United States who are targets of violent crimes such as rape, domestic violence and stalking. In 2000, several changes to the Violence Against Women Act created the National Rape Prevention Education Program (RPE) as a stand-alone categorical grant. CDC's National Center for Injury Prevention and Control was designated as having responsibility for the National RPE program.

Overview of ACCARDV

The mission of the Arkansas Commission on Child Abuse, Rape, and Domestic Violence is to enhance investigation, treatment, support, and prevention in cases of child abuse, rape, and domestic violence. As a reflection of this mission, the Commission seeks to provide training, prevention, public awareness, resource development and technical assistance services to service providers, decision makers, professionals and concerned citizens. The Commission also seeks to reduce the incidence of rape and attempted rape through broad-based education efforts, including the provision of funds to local communities for sexual violence prevention and education.

Sexual Violence Primary Prevention

The working definition of sexual violence prevention for the RPE program is population-based and/or environmental and system-level strategies, policies and actions that prevent sexual violence from initially occurring. Such prevention efforts work to modify and/or entirely eliminate the events, conditions, situations or exposure to influences (risk factors) that result in the initiation of sexual violence and associated injuries, disabilities and deaths. Additionally, sexual violence prevention efforts address perpetration, victimization and bystander attitudes and behaviors and seek to identify and enhance protective factors that impede the initiation of sexual violence not only in at-risk populations, but also the community at large.

The range of sexual violence prevention strategies is broad and is multi-faceted, requiring the skills and approaches of many disciplines and areas of expertise. Through the RPE program, the awardees will promote efforts to modify or eliminate the individual, relationship, community, and societal influences that are associated with the perpetration, victimization and bystander attitudes and behaviors that allow sexual violence to occur.

Comprehensive Sexual Violence Prevention Strategies/Methods

Comprehensive sexual violence primary prevention includes the use of widely accepted and proven methods and strategies. These methods/strategies include:

- Evidence-based: Subgrantees are strongly encouraged to use the best available evidence for program planning and development. Evidence can range from evaluation and research data on the effectiveness of a certain program or strategy to local and published data such as data from police reports or surveys. Published data can be helpful in identifying risk and protective factors and risk groups for sexual violence. Risk groups are identified by demographic variables that are not easily changed such as gender, race or age. Risk and protective factors are characteristics of either the person or their environment that are more easily modified such as attitudes, beliefs and behaviors.
- Social ecological model: This model allows incorporation of risk and protective factors from multiple domains. The social ecological model not only addresses an individual's risk factors, but also the norms, beliefs and social and economic systems that create the conditions for the occurrence of sexual violence.
 - Individual: The first level identifies biological and personal history factors that increase the likelihood of becoming a victim or perpetrator of violence. Some of these factors are age, education, income, substance use, or history of abuse.
 - Relationship: The second level includes factors that increase risk because of relationships with peers, intimate partners, and family members. A person's closest social circle-peers, partners and family members-influences their behavior and contributes to their range of experience.
 - Community: The third level explores the settings, such as schools, workplaces, and neighborhoods, in which social relationships occur and seeks to identify the characteristics of these settings that are associated with becoming victims or perpetrators of violence.
 - Societal: The fourth level looks at the broad societal factors that help create a climate in which violence is encouraged or inhibited. These factors include social and cultural norms. Other large societal factors include the health, economic, educational and social policies that help to maintain economic or social inequalities between groups in society.

Applicants must demonstrate use of at least two levels of the ecological model in proposed activities.

- Developmentally appropriate materials and approaches: The use of developmentally appropriate approaches takes into account the level of physical, social, emotional, and intellectual development of the participants. Applicants should demonstrate use of materials that are developmentally appropriate for the targeted population.
- Inclusion of post-session materials: Research shows that informational materials should be provided as learning reinforcement in addition to educational seminars and trainings. Applicants should incorporate use of informational materials into proposed activities.
- Partnerships and Collaboration: Partnership and collaborative efforts can enhance program capacity to achieve intended outcomes. Applicants should demonstrate collaboration with other organizations to share resources and integrate messages into existing systems.
- Nine principles of prevention: Nine characteristics have been consistently associated with effective prevention programming. Effective programming includes:
 1. Comprehensive strategies;
 2. Varied teaching methods;
 3. Sufficient dosage;
 4. Theory driven;
 5. Opportunities for positive relationships;
 6. Appropriately timed;
 7. Socio-culturally relevant;
 8. Outcome evaluation; and
 9. Well-trained staff.

Applicants should make every effort to incorporate the nine principles of prevention into sexual violence primary prevention efforts. More information about the nine principles of prevention can be found at http://www.preventconnect.org/wiki/index.php?title=Nine Principles of Effective Prevention Programs.

“Sexual Violence Prevention: Beginning the Dialogue” identifies concepts and strategies, including use of the social ecological model, that may be used as a foundation for planning, implementing, and evaluating sexual violence primary prevention activities.

Permitted Uses of Rape Prevention Education Funds

Federal legislatively approved activities to prevent sexual violence and first time perpetration and victimization include the following:

- Educational seminars: Educational presentations made to public groups such as schools, civic groups, or churches. Example: a six week multi-session program for high school students that include modules on healthy relationships, sexual harassment, bystander skill building, gender roles and expectations, consent and coercion, sexual assault laws, community resources, and information concerning what to do if you are raped.

- Training programs for professionals: Training programs for various professional groups such as teachers, law enforcement or business professionals. Example: a one-day (or multi-session) training program for business leaders in the community concerning factors within the workplace climate and culture that support sexual violence and recommending policies and practices that employers can implement to support change.
- Preparation of informational materials: Research shows that informational materials should be provided in addition to educational seminars and trainings to reinforce learning. Example: creation of a handout or brochure detailing social norms that contribute to a societal acceptance of sexual violence and information on ways to begin changing those norms.
- Operation of information hotlines: Phone lines used for the purpose of providing information about sexual violence prevention and education. (These phone lines are not meant for use as victim support hotlines.) Example: well trained staff or volunteers providing information on primary prevention practices, technical assistance, and necessary referrals.
- Education and training programs for students and campus personnel: Programs designed to reduce the incidence of sexual assault at colleges and universities. Example: an eight week program for XYZ fraternity intended to change peer group norms that are supportive of sexual violence
- Programs to address drug-facilitated sexual assault: Efforts to increase awareness about and prevent drugs used to facilitate rapes or sexual assaults. Example: a collaboration with local substance abuse prevention professionals to provide educational seminars for high school and college students and staff to increase awareness of drug facilitated rape.
- Efforts to help prevent sexual assault among individuals with disabilities (as defined in section 3 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12102)): Example: one-day (or multi-session) training program for professionals who work with people with disabilities designed to help organizations implement policy changes intended to decrease the climate and culture that supports violence against people with disabilities.

Please note: General sexual violence educational seminars/trainings such as prevalence and dynamics of sexual violence, laws and statutes, etc. and intervention-based sessions such as how to help a victim, recognizing the warning signs, etc. are not sufficient to change attitudes, beliefs and behaviors and prevent sexual violence from occurring. Consequently, seminars/trainings can include general sexual violence and intervention-based topics as long as they are part of a broader primary prevention strategy.*

Arkansas Strategic Plan for Rape Prevention

In 2001 the Commission, along with staff from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock, conducted a series of focus groups of stakeholders to articulate a vision and broad goals for Rape Prevention in Arkansas. The result was the Arkansas Strategic Plan for Rape Prevention. Each goal targets a population for rape prevention education including children, adults, professionals, policymakers, and legislators. The goals relating to primary prevention are:

- Goal One: Children in Arkansas possess the knowledge, attitudes and beliefs that contribute to a society free from sexual violence.
- Goal Two: Adults in Arkansas possess knowledge, attitudes and beliefs that contribute to a society free from sexual violence.
- Goal Three: Policymakers in Arkansas possess the knowledge, attitudes and beliefs that contribute to a society free from sexual violence.
- Goal Four: Legislators in Arkansas possess the knowledge, attitudes and beliefs that contribute to a society free from sexual violence.
- Goal Five: Professionals possess the knowledge, attitudes and beliefs that contribute to a society free from sexual violence.

The Strategic Plan includes objectives and tasks to accomplish the stated goals. Applicants must illustrate goals and objectives that address the goals in the Arkansas Strategic Plan for Rape Prevention. However, if the applicant has other ideas as to how these goals can be accomplished, those tasks should be outlined in the proposal and identified with the appropriate goal. Applicants who need a copy of the Strategic Plan may obtain one at <http://www.accardv.uams.edu/rape.htm> or by contacting the Commission.

Eligibility

Applicants must be public or nonprofit agencies or institutions of higher learning. Applicants must demonstrate a clear understanding of the dynamics of sexual violence, the principles of prevention and show how they will address these complex issues. Applicants must also show the level of commitment to the issue and why they believe they are the best organization to address this issue in the proposed target community.

The RFP Review Committee reserves the right to deny funds to those organizations that do not meet the requirements of this grant. Project Evaluation (20 Points)

ACCARDV is committed to funding agencies whose goals are to change the knowledge, attitudes, beliefs and behaviors that support sexual violence and that reduce the incidence of rape and attempted rape. In order to assess the progress of the project, as well as changes in the Funded programs should also utilize tools or instruments, such as satisfaction surveys or participant interviews, to determine needed improvements/enhancements to their programs.

- c. Outcome Evaluation: Funded projects are also expected to plan and implement an outcome evaluation for proposed activities. All subgrantees will be responsible for analyzing and reporting on results. ACCARDV has developed a Resource Kit that includes basic information on evaluation, approved surveys and other evaluations tools. Approved surveys include:
